

The Strait and the Story

Oil shipments through the strait carry roughly a fifth of global consumption, which is the number every headline reaches for first.

Analysts have long argued the waterway is less closable than it looks, because closing it would cut the closer before anyone else.